Features and considerations

Accidental Death and Dismemberment (AD&D) benefit enrollment

In case of death: Should a covered employee's death be ruled an accident under the terms of the Group Policy, the AD&D will be paid to beneficiary.Beneficiary (ies)A person or an organization you name to receive death benefits. A beneficiary does not need to be a legal dependent. ^[4]

For losses other than life: In case of loss of hand, foot, sight, speech, hearing or other loss, the amount is a percentage of the AD&D Insurance benefit and is determined according to the terms of the Group Policy table. Benefit is payable to insured member. See AD&D Insurance Certificate. ^[5]

Choosing your beneficiary

At the time of enrollment, you will be asked to designate your beneficiary. A beneficiary means a person you name to receive death benefits.

- You may name one or more beneficiaries.
- If you name two or more, they will share equally, unless you provide for unequal shares by use of percentages.
- You may name anyone as a beneficiary meaning your beneficiary does not need to be a legal dependentDependentAn employee's spouse, common-law spouse, civil union partner, domestic partner, children under the age of 27, and qualifying disabled children over age 27 of the employee or of the spouse/partner who are biological, legally adopted or for whom there are parental responsibility documents issued by a court.

- You may also name an organization in place of a person.
