Gender Identity FAQs

Why is CU collecting gender identification?

CU's portal features align with federal and state government efforts to expand access to accurate ID documents and documentation.

This feature allows employees to self-identify their gender identity and for CU to accurately reflect the diverse makeup of its workforce.

Who can see my selection?

Gender identity selections are deemed Highly Confidential in CU's data governance classification [14]. Selections can be seen by employees who have HCM access to this data, including department HR roles and some individuals in campus HR and IT offices.

Could this be included in a CORA request?

No. A faculty or staff member's gender identity selected is exempt from CORA requests, as it falls under rules protecting certain employee personnel records from public disclosure.

Aggregate data may be requested through CORA, which would not include any personally identifiable information.

Do I have to identify my gender identity?

No, this is not required information. This selection is voluntary.
